

Honoring the Wheel of the Year: Samhain - Turning to Inner Landscape

Instructor: Judith Day

At this time of the year, as the days grow shorter and nights and darkness lengthen, our focus naturally turns inward. The ancient Celtic festival of Samhain, from which our Halloween is descended, honors the ending of the growing season and the beginning of a new year.

In this workshop, we will honor the transitions from light to dark, warm to cold, outer to inner, harvest to hibernation - in both inner and outer worlds. Through story, art making, quiet contemplation, journaling, witnessing, and sharing, participants will be invited to explore and celebrate this seasonal change. We will end with a simple ceremony to help us to honor the darkness while remembering the light.
